Home Learning – Managing Expectations

- Some families have contacted us expressing concern about the work being provided.
- Please be aware that the work we are setting is in the main reviewing and revising topics that have already been taught in school and embedding this learning.
- It is for you as a family and individual students to pick and choose from the work available to help keep your minds active and your learning alive. Your teachers are simply providing enough for those of you who want to do more but nobody will be judged on how much or how little is done.
- You must build this work around other activities which may include physical activity, reading, creativity, cooking, gardening, watching films, chatting with your family and friends (safely online!).
- Please don't worry about doing lots of writing, focus on exercises that you can mark or that are marked online. Read more, watch programmes you wouldn't normally watch such as documentaries.
- We do not want to cause any unnecessary stress. We understand that you might not have unlimited access to the internet or that there may be other members of your family who need to use the computer / laptop or that your WiFi might sometimes stop working. It is more important that as a family you learn how to get along when you are so closely confined.
- Stay positive. Together we will come through this.
